

Kristin Fleck, MSW, LSW, brings over five years of experience in supporting children, their families, and communities impacted by trauma and abuse. Her work has included providing direct services such as forensic interviewing and family advocacy, securing funding for anti-human trafficking and military partnership initiatives, managing and expanding military partnerships with the child advocacy center, and delivering prevention education and training. Her Bachelor of Arts in Human Rights Studies, combined with her Master of Social Work, underscores her deep commitment to advocating for vulnerable populations and addressing systemic issues related to child maltreatment and abuse. She now applies her extensive expertise as a Project Coordinator at Zero Abuse Project.
